On Being Late...

I The man who we called ‘the gaffer’, the manager, he was quite a crabbit man and depending on the mood he was in if you came in a wee bit late he would say “You’re late, you just go back down the road” and you would say “Oh please just let me stay, I’ll not be late again” and he would say “No, just go”. And you would start going down the stairs and he would call you back and say “Okay you can wait, but if you’re late tomorrow you’re definitely down the road”. But I have been sent home because I was late two days in a row.

On Difficulties...

I I didn’t find anything really that difficult to fix. I’m maybe being a wee bit big headed here. Some jobs were harder than others. There used to be a big notice up in the workshop ‘All difficulties are to be surmounted’ and I used to do my best to adhere to that.
